

I Love Anne Michaels

for making me cry because of such word beauty and rendered storymaking.

The territory of my books—the heart of my writing life—has been the exploration of ‘what love makes us capable of, and incapable of,’ as well as an idea I put forward in Fugitive Pieces: ‘there is nothing a man will not do to another, nothing a man will not do for another.’

READ

annemichaels.ca
lyrical layered intimate moral emotional astounding poetic philosophical

POETRY

The Weight of Oranges
Miner’s Pond
Skin Divers
Railtracks
Correspondences
All We Saw

FICTION

Fugitive Pieces
The Winter Vault
Adventures of Miss Petitfour
Infinite Gradation

poet | novelist | professor

